August Belmont was the next speaker. He said if what Mr. Comstock had said was true he would not himself be present. He asserted that the bill was honestly framed to prevent the very abuses of which Mr. Comstock complained. He did not be lieve the Constitutional Convention intended to pas a prohibitive measure aimed at betting. It did, however, aim to prohibit the abuses of the racetrack So did the Jockey Club, which was not interested in the racetracks at all. He said the object of the bill was to prevent the persecution of reputable me who raced horses for pleasure. It did not propos-to violate the feelings of the people or the law. Bu jockey clubs felt they had as much right to protectheir interests as had Mr. Comstock's society to d what it did. He denied that the Jockey Club go an income from the tracks, as Mr. Comstock had suggested, and closed by saying that all the horseowners asked was fair treatment.

W. H. Bowman, of the Rochester Driving Park Association, attacked Mr. Comstock as a master of not to abuse his betters. Just as good men as Mr. Comstock were engaged in the racing business. They wanted to continue improving horses and thought they had done more for horses than he had for men. In behalf of the horsemen who wanted to perfect the bill, he asked an adjournment for two weeks.

John M. Bowers, representing the Coney Island Jockey Club, said that association had paid $25,525 last season to horse-owners in purses alone. It paid over $27,000 to the State in taxes. Among its directors were some of the leading men in every walk of life. These directors believed that the Constitution would wipe out this association unless the Legislature stepped in. The club had previously contracted to give $25,500 in stakes next summer and could not keep these contracts unless the Legislature stepped in stakes next summer and could not keep these contracts unless the Legislature said it was lawful to do so. The question now was whether betting or racing should be suppressed. The bill forbade all the wrongs of the poolrooms and the betting at the tracks, as it had been so strongly asserted. In reply to Mr. Wilde, he said he objected to the other bills because they stopped all racing.

Mr. Anerbach, of New-York, representing the Jockey Club, assailed Mr. Comstock's analysis of the bill. He discussed the several sections, showing that the first, against which Mr. Comstock had been especially severe, was copled from the business corporation law. If Mr. Wilde and Mr. Comstock wanted added penalties for poolselling, the horsemen were willing to have the bill changel so at the committee adjourned the hearing for one west. not to abuse his betters. Albany, Feb. 21 (Special).—One of the most im-portant recommendations made by Governor Morton in his first message to the Legislature was put into effect by the Assembly to-day. Soon are the morning session began, Mr. Airsworth sent to the desk the report of the Committee on Ways and the desk the report of the report was the following resolution, which was offered on January 14 by Mr ceived yesterday. Just before to-day's session ended, the other two Democratic officials sent in their reports. When they were announced from the desk the keenest interest was attracted. The report from Frederick C. Shraub, Commissioner of Agriculture, was a formidable looking document, and seemed from the outside to be only a few measures shorter than the Mosaic law. But the House wanted it read, and the clerk proeeded. Commissioner Shraub said:

But the House wanted it read, and the clerk proceeded. Commissioner Shraub said.

In reply to the resolution, I most respectfully report that I have made but one appointment since January I. 185, being James P. Clark, of Falconer, Chautauqua County, as Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture, to take effect February II, 185, in place of James W. McMahon, voluntarily resigned. I am pleased at the opportunity afforded me by this resolution to make this public statement, as the opinion has somehow got abroad, and have been promugated through the press, that a large number of appointments have lately been made in this department in the interest of the dominant political party in the Legislature. Your resolution requested that I should report the names of all State officials who have requested any appointments from my department. If I were literally to comply with that request, it would be necessary for me to practically report the names of a majority of the members of both houses of this Legislature, who have at one time or another requested appointments to any vaccancies that might exist in our service. I have kept no list of these requests, and so at the best could simply state from memory. This vaccancy, to fill which Mr. Clark was appointed, was caused by the resignation of Mr. McMahon, on January 19, to take effect after February I. I doubt if ever in the history of the State service there has been a bigger scramble for any vaccancy win an office caving only a salary of floo a month. Between the time of the resignation of Mr. McMahon and the appointment of Mr. Clark, I received forty-one separate petitions, containing over 646 signatures, recommending this appointment, after personally consulting with Mr. Clark being well satisfied that he was in every way well qualified for the piace, in deference to the very general request of which I have spoken, I made the appointment. It seems bardly credibe, in view of so many of these being prominent citizens of his own county, that it should not be satisfactory to the mo

The names of 646 Chantauqua Republicans who had asked for this appointment were then reached by the clerk, "Let's have them read," said Mr. Ainsworth, the Republican leader. After the cierk had read a hundred or more the House grew tired of Chautauqua names, and Mr. Ainsworth moved that the report be laid upon the table to be printed. Thereupon Mr. Nixon, who seemed angry, advanced rapidly into the well, "I know what the gentleman from Oswego means by that motion," he shouted.

"Mr. Speaker," said the Republican leader, "I'd like to know why I am being criticized in this way. The motion which I make is, I believe, the usual and proper one. What does the gentleman from Chautauqua want?" Speaker Fish held that Mr. Ainsworth's motion proper, and it was carried, not, however, until after Mr. Nixon had intimated that more would be heard upon the subject later.

The report from Factory Inspector James Con-noily was then read. Its most notable feature is the reference to Mr. Nixon as being among the applicants to Mr. Connoily for places. The report said;

On February I, 1886, Benton S. Chapman was appointed private secretary to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of the former secretary, and said appointed service Commission under Schedule C. On February I, Frank S. Nash was appointed to the position of Deputy Factory Inspector to fill a vacancy caused by a resignation tendered on account of ill health. Mr. Nash was indorsed by Senator Edmund O'Connor. On February I John W. Marsellus was appointed to the position of Deputy Factory Inspector to fill a vancancy caused by a resignation of Deputy Factory Inspector to fill a vancancy caused by a feamoval for cause. Mr. Marsellus was indorsed by a removal for cause. Mr. Marsellus was indorsed by many prominent citizens of Jefferson County, by workingmen, by clergymen, and by officers of various Grand Army posts of the State.

I beg leave further to state with reference to that part of the resolution requiring the names of any and all State officials who have requested any appointments, that casual talks have been had with Mr. Nixon and a number of Senators, Assemblymen and other State officers, many of whose names I cannot recall; but, as no formal requests were made or granted. I do not presume that these talks are of sufficient importance to be within the spirit of the resolution. The only requests in writing of this nature which have been received by me are from plicants to Mr. Connolly for places. The report said:
